

Severe Storms Wednesday

Central Pennsylvania
WEATHER FORECAST OFFICE

OVERVIEW:

- Thunderstorms are expected this afternoon through early tonight.
- A few of these storms could become severe.

TIMING & LOCATION

- Mid afternoon through early tonight.
- Likely developing first across the Northwest Mountains and Susquehanna River Valley.

HAZARDS & IMPACTS

- Damaging wind gusts are the main threat, though isolated instances of large hail are possible.
- A brief tornado can't be ruled out, especially across the northwest mountains late today and this evening.

FORECAST CHALLENGES

- The threat of severe weather could hold off until very late in the day or this evening across portions of the Central Mountains.

POST-EVENT OUTLOOK

- Cooler and dry conditions return for the end of the week.

NEXT BRIEFING

- By 5PM today.

